Festive Drapes

Few countries have a handloom heritage as rich as India's, with textile traditions as varied as they are many in number. Celebrating this history is Shades of India's festive collection which is inspired by the textile culture of the island of Bali. The collection boasts of luxurious fabrics of silk and velvet in intense hues like mahogany, cinnamon and fuschia finished with hints of lustre through zari work and gold foiling radiate a sense of opulence.

The collection includes versatile separates of classic sarees, contemporary kurtas and playful shararas in ethereal silhouettes that are comfortable yet perfectly suit the festive occasion. Adding to the antiquity of the collection are exquisite accessories of frame bags and neck pieces in colours and textures borrowed from nature. The collection draws its inspiration from the Indonesian word beBALI - meaning ceremonial attire of the gods. BeBALI is celebration in itself. Every thread sings of festivity and every stitch treasures the timeless lores of our rich crafts and heritage.

Ulysse Nardin's new Executive Tourbillon defies expectations as well as gravity.

When craft and technology commune, the result is usually delightful. Ulysse Nardin's Executive Tourbillon "Free Wheel" defies expectations as well as gravity with its spectacular new innovation that literally turns watchmaking on its head.

Crafted in a grand white or rose gold, with a brand-new movement and a startlingly innovative box-domed sapphire, the modern-sized 44mm dial in dark stone is carved from a slab of slate for the 18-carat rose gold version, and built on a sleek black honeycomb grid for the 18-carat white gold version.

The most surprising features are the dial's tourbillon bridges and the 7-day power reserve indicator at four o'clock that are shaped like boomerangs and look like they are actually floating in air as do the other 'skeletonised' components, the hour and minute indicators and the gorgeous gear trains. What's more, the strap is "carbon leather" in matte alligator, which is exceptionally soft to the touch. Price On Request Available brand outlets
